SESSION DESCRIPTION:

This session will focus on innovative applications of IoT and AI that prioritize human well-being and inclusivity. The scope encompasses solutions that improve accessibility for differently-abled individuals, enhance healthcare delivery through personalized and remote monitoring systems, and foster safer and more efficient living environments. Topics include the development of wearable devices for health tracking, AI-driven mental health support systems, IoT-based smart home automation for the elderly, and AI-powered assistive technologies. The session will also explore ethical considerations and user-centric design principles to ensure equitable access and adoption of these technologies across diverse communities.

By addressing real-world challenges and emphasizing human needs, this session aims to inspire interdisciplinary research and foster collaborations to create transformative solutions that enhance quality of life globally
